

SECOND U. S. PLANE OUT OF ROUND-WORLD FLIGHT

CROWE TRIES TO GET CASE BEFORE JURY

Seeks to Force Alienist to Term Boy Slayers as Being "Insane."

Chicago, Aug. 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—Dr. William Healy of Boston, testifying as a defense alienist at the Franks hearing this afternoon, termed Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., a "paranoid personality" and "thoroughly unbalanced in mental life," but resisted State's Attorney Crowe's effort to have him admit Leopold was "insane."

It was another effort by the state's attorney to have the hearing for punishment of Leopold and Richard Loeb turned into a jury trial on a plea of legal insanity.

His Judgment Impaired

Dr. Healy, this morning, testified that in his judgment, there was some steady impairment of Leopold's own judgment concerning his own self, particularly his relationship to life. Previously Dr. W. A. White of Washington testified Richard Loeb's personality was undergoing a process of disintegration.

He refused to elaborate in open court on his remarks regarding "a childish compact" between the youths and Judge Caverly overruled Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, in his contention it should be brought out openly.

"There will be nothing brought out here that is not fit for publication," declared Judge Caverly. He directed the attorneys and court stenographers to gather closely about the witness and Dr. Healy proceeded with his testimony in a quiet tone.

"Get back there you newspapermen," directed Judge Caverly as reporters and photographers pressed forward. "This is not fit for publication. You are not going to get it."

Dr. Healy took the stand and under questioning by Clarence Darrow, identified himself as a physician and psychologist of Boston. State's Attorney Crowe offered the same objection to testimony as he had in the instance of Dr. White and, as he had done previously, Judge Caverly overruled and Dr. Healy proceeded to qualify as an expert witness.

Dr. Healy testified in a confident, unhurried tone.

He said he had made the study of the conduct of children and adolescents his chief work.

Had Examined Boys.

Dr. Healy said he had studied Leopold and Loeb themselves, their histories, family histories, given them psychological tests and had endeavored to get data on their emotional lives, beginning July 4 and seeing them a "considerable number of times since."

"A general physical observation of the boys with special mental tests, observation of their personalities, emotional lives, studies of their correspondence and correspondence to them, interviews with other people concerning their home lives, and associates," Dr. Healy said led to his conclusions.

Having laid the groundwork for Dr. Healy's expert testimony, Mr. Darrow asked him to go ahead with all his conclusions. Mr. Crowe insisted the expert give details of the examination and deductions, and Judge Caverly instructed that he do that, referring to his notes and talking without interruption by the state. "You will have plenty of opportunity for cross examination," the court said to Mr. Crowe.

Association Began at 15.

The association between the two boys began at 15 years of age, he said. "It was very clear from a study of the boys separated, that each had peculiarities in their mental lives, each arrived at peculiarly by different routes and each supplemented the others real abnormal needs in a most unique way."

"As judged by conversation and by correspondences their compact their quarrels and their deeds all tend to show a most strange and pathological relation. According to the stories of each the idea of their coming together for crime purpose began in a very definite way with their planning of extensive cheating at bridge."

Mr. Crowe objected to the doctor testifying as to generalities and making a speech and was sustained by the court which admonished Dr. Healy to tell directly "what Loeb and what Leopold said."

Committed Many Thefts.

"Concerning Loeb," Dr. Healy declared, "there were any number of minor thefts he committed for purpose of apparently getting a thrill. In the matter of their association, I have the boys' stories told separately about an incredibly absurd childish compact which bound them and which bears out in Leopold's case"

EX-SEN. TOWNSEND OF MICHIGAN DIED SUDDENLY SUNDAY

Heart Disease Cause of Death While He Was Visiting Friends.

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Jackson, Mich., Aug. 4.—Charles E. Townsend, former senior U. S. Senator from Michigan, died suddenly of heart disease while visiting at the home of friends here Sunday night.

At the time of his death Mr. Townsend was a member of the joint international commission dealing with boundaries. He had been prominent in state and national public life for more than 20 years, having been elected to congress in 1902 and to the senate in 1910 where he served until defeated by Senator Ferris, democrat, in 1922.

Townsend won his way up from the ranks by unceasing application and industry. Born and reared in poverty, he picked up scraps of an education as he could get them between seasons of work. Studying law at night and teaching school by day, he gained admission to the bar at the age of 23, and then after seven years of successful practice was elected to the House of Representatives and subsequently to the Senate.

Was Born on Farm.

He was born on a farm in Concord township, Jackson county, Michigan, on August 15, 1856. Until he was 19 years old his farm duties kept him out of reach of any but the country school; then he entered Jackson High school, working for his board as a stable boy. Two years later he went to the University of Michigan and paid his expenses by outside work during his winter there.

Returning to Concord, he became a school teacher at $40 a month, and continued in that profession until 1885.

In 1895 he passed a bar examination, and two years afterward became the law partner of Charles A. Blair, later attorney general of Michigan, and Charles H. Smith, later prosecuting attorney for the Philippines.

Mr. Townsend served four terms as representative in congress, beginning in 1902. In his first term he gained prominence by fathering a bill to abolish railroad rebates, but it failed in the Senate after having been passed by the House.

During the next congress, however, many of his proposals were written into the Hepburn railroad law, which he helped formulate.

His Advice Sought.

In 1910 he advised the race for the Senate, contesting for the Republican nomination with Senator Julius C. Burrows, a veteran of Michigan politics. In an informal primary he carried all but seven of the Michigan counties, was elected by the legislature, and was re-elected by popular vote in 1916.

An experienced legislator and a convincing debater, Senator Townsend's advice and support were sought by the Senate leaders on many important pieces of legislation. He was regarded by many during his services in the House of Representatives as the spokesman of President Roosevelt on railroad questions. Later as a member of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee he had an active part in framing the railroad bill which restored the roads to their owners after the war. He also served as chairman of the postoffice committee in the Senate, and in that capacity was in charge of the big appropriation bills for expenditures of the postoffice department.

Mr. Townsend was married in 1890 to Miss Rena Padlock, who died early in 1920. They had no children.

DIXONITES IN WRECK WEST OF SUBLETTE TOWN

Car Wrecked in Collision While Enroute to Starved Rock.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Seibert and Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Freed of this city were near death about 11:30 Sunday morning when the Olds touring car in which they had started from Dixon to motor to Starved Rock, was almost completely demolished in a wreck about a half mile west of Sublette. The Dixon party had just turned a corner when a Chevrolet touring car, driven by a man named Fisher, with three other young men from Sublette and vicinity, going at a high rate of speed, crashed into the side of the Dixon car.

Mrs. Seibert and Mrs. Freed who were in the rear set were thrown several feet from the wreck and rendered unconscious. Seibert, who was driving and Freed who occupied the front seat were pinned in the car. Fortunately none of the occupants of either car was seriously injured. Mrs. Seibert and Mrs. Freed were badly bruised and suffered from shock. All of the parties were taken to the Angar hospital at Sublette where their injuries were dressed and late in the afternoon returned to Dixon on the train.

The crash was heard in Sublette and in a few minutes afterward, a large crowd had gathered about the two wrecked machines. Mr. Seibert's car was badly damaged and was towed to a garage at Sublette. The occupants of Fisher's car were considerably shaken up, but not seriously injured. Their car, however, was considerably damaged.

Federation Labor Gives All Its Time to Politics

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—Politics today claimed again the right of way on the schedule of the American Federation of Labor's executive council, in annual session here since last Friday.

Having endorsed the La Follette-Wheeler candidates and platform, the council will side track all other matters and undertake to make up its entire 1924 campaign program, national, state and local.

Consideration of the "national defense day" issue which unexpectedly was listed on the order of business after the council sessions began and since has been deferred from day to day, was prepared once more. This question probably will come up for action Wednesday or Thursday.

Mrs. Flynn was taken to the Dixon hospital where her injuries were dressed and her husband was later taken to the office of a physician.

A Chandler coupe, is said to have been driven by a Mrs. Parks of Woodstock, is reported to have swung onto the Highway from the north side road, directly in the path of the west bound car. Another machine driven by a Dixonite was forced to drive into the ditch to prevent three cars from figuring in the crash, it is said. The Wichita machine was damaged to such an extent that it had to be towed to a local garage for repairs. The parties in the Parks car escaped with a severe shaking up and minor bruises.

Today's Market Report

LEAD MARKETS CORN HIT
Corn Hit New High
Price for Season

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Aug. 4.—Estimates that the 1924 wheat yield in the United States would amount to $97,000,000 bushels had a bearish effect on the wheat market today, especially toward the last. The close was unsettled, 1/4c to 1/2c net lower, Sept. 1 1/4% and Dec. 1 3/8%.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Aug. 4.—Wheat prices averaged higher today during early dealings. An upturn in Winnipeg quotations together with renewal of black rust reports both from north and south of the Canadian boundary tended to stimulate wheat buying and so too did an advance in the corn market. Opening prices which varied from unchanged to 1/4c higher, Sept. 1 3/8% and Dec. 1 3/8% were followed by moderate setbacks and then by a rise all around to well above Saturday's finish.

All deliveries of corn reached a new high record for the season. After opening at 10c decline to 1/4c advance, Dec. 1 3/8%, the market scored sharp general gains, more than 3/4c in some cases.

Oats rose with corn and as a result of wet weather hindering oats harvest. Starting unchanged to 1/4c off, oats also showed a decided general upturn.

Provisions were strong. Subsequently, the fact that December corn delivery showed 12 cents advance over last week's low point, tended to bring about a reaction and so likewise did a forecast that the 1924 crop would total 120,000,000 bushels more than was expected on July 1. The close was nervous 1/4c to 1/2c net higher, Dec. 1 3/8% to 1 1/2%.

Rural Mail Carriers to Hold Convention, Aug. 15th
The Rural Letter Carriers of Illinois will hold their annual convention at Decatur on August 15th and 16th, and an unusually large attendance is expected.

The principal speaker will be Hon. Henry R. Rathbone, Congressman-at-Large for Illinois, who will deliver his address on the afternoon of August 15th.

The Rural Letter Carriers are staunch friends of the Congressman, as he was the one who secured them a Christmas holiday, something which they had never had before.

In this connection, Mr. Ray S. Phillips, president of the Illinois Rural Letter Carriers' Association said:

"Rural letter carriers in Illinois have tried in vain for ten years to get a holiday on Christmas day, not because they were shirkers, but because Christmas is the annual family homecoming, and their absence broke the family circle on that day."

"The 'Mail it early, don't open it' Christmas campaign in the past few years has been so effective that Christmas has become the lightest day of the 20 just before and just after Christmas and in view of this fact, and the fact that the activity of rural letter carriers on Christmas made it necessary for mail clerks and often postmasters to remain on the job while their families were celebrating, I took up the matter with Representative Henry R. Rathbone of Illinois."

"In reply to a telegram on the subject, Mr. Rathbone replied, 'I immediately upon receipt of your letter I took matter up with Postmaster General and am happy to inform you that your request for a Christmas holiday for rural letter carriers has been granted.'"

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Aug. 4.—As part of the state-wide survey the food division of the state department of agriculture has just completed hearings involving eight dairymen and restaurant owners at Lincoln, Illinois, where inspectors found "watered" and low grade milk, it was learned today. As a result the offenders have been given an opportunity to avoid prosecution by adopting bottled milk, and in case of future good conduct, legal action against them will be held in abeyance, according to D. G. Morely, chief inspector of the foods division.

Some cases of milk of low specific gravity, indicating "doctoring" with water, others of using faucets at the bottom of containers and similar methods of reducing the butter fat content of milk sold for food were reported by inspectors who investigated at Lincoln, the inspector said.

"We are making a state-wide survey," Mr. Morely added. "The situation at Lincoln is no worse than at many other points. Our aim is to eliminate such conditions rather than prosecution."

Third Party Leaders are Undecided About Speeches
By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Aug. 4.—Senator La Follette and his advisers are still undecided as to when they should begin active campaigning. Indications are that little will be done for at least a month and that the time will be mainly devoted to routine organization work.

Advisability of Senator La Follette making his initial campaign speech on Labor Day in some industrial center is being considered, it was said today, but some of his friends have advised him to wait until next September.

Speechmaking itineraries are being arranged for Senator La Follette and his running mate, Senator Wheeler of Montana, but probably they will not be worked out in detail for some weeks. Senator Wheeler is expected to get under way before the end of August on an extensive tour which will carry him to the Pacific coast and into practically all western states as well as industrial centers of the east. Senator La Follette plans to make considerable use of the radio and to deliver addresses in at least a dozen states.

CROWE TRIES TO EET CASE BEFORE JURY

particularly the idea of his mental condition.

Loeb says the association gave him the opportunity of getting some one to carry out his criminalistic imaginations. In the case of Leopold, the direct cause of his criminalistic acts was his particularly childish compact.

Mr. Crowe interrupted with a demand that Dr. Healy specify the "childish compact" and the psychiatrist hesitated before he refused to proceed in open court and suggested a retirement to the judicial chamber.

Over Mr. Crowe's persistence, Judge Caverly ruled "nothing unit or publication will be brought out here" and directed Dr. Healy to talk to the stenographers for the court record with the attorneys for both sides grouped closely about.

Secret Discussion.
Dr. Healy said the matter secretly discussed had a bearing on the ultimate act of the boys.

He asserted Loeb told him on a number of occasions he never had found anything which would deter him from "doing it over again" referring to the Franks murder.

"On the part of Leopold," Dr. Healy continued, "I have a statement from his that 'well, yes, I would continue in this sort of affair.' However, I think it more from an intellectual standpoint and for his own personal gratifications. I see Leopold of high nervous instability, frequently had greatly exaggerated use of the fact; subject to ready blushing, palors, etc. I see signs in him of the great nervous energy. I agree with the Bowman and Hulbert report that their results show evidence of pathology of glands of internal secretion."

High General Intelligence.
"Regarding Leopold's mentality, I find by conclusive evidence that he possesses very high general intelligence."

As Dr. Healy reads slowly from the tests he had given Leopold, it was brought out that they included motor control, directions, judgement symbol and various other tests, with the youth usually rating very high in his replies, his only failure being in a paper cutting test.

Dr. Healy testified to his high intellect, Leopold blushed and smiled widely, while Loeb, lips parted slightly, sat interested but unsmiling.

Dr. Healy testified that in a word-reaction test in which he suggested one word and Leopold mentioned the word that one brought in to his mind, Leopold's mind functioned slowly when "chisel" and "trouble" were mentioned. A chisel was the instrument of death in the Franks murder.

Leopold scored only 56 out of a possible 100 in a picture cut-out test. "Just average for a 12-year-old child," said Dr. Healy, "very poorly indeed, much to my surprise."

"Throughout the tests Leopold showed himself self-centered and egotistic beyond any normal state," the witness testified.

"For years he has been very rebellious against social and religious obligations."

Thinks He's Superman
"He says he is a superman, on the basis of the philosophy of Nietzsche," Dr. Healy testified regarding Leopold. "In jail, he feels similar to Napoleon on St. Helena."

"Leopold's main concern seems to be, as he says, whether the reporters say the right things about him. I saw no evidence of what one might expect of a normal emotional life in jail or related to his discussion of the crime."

Dr. Healy touched on the "slave-king" phantasy brought out previously by Dr. White, and his testimony closely paralleled that of the Washington psychiatrist.

"It is particularly clear that he is enjoying immensely the part he is playing," said the doctor. "It is much like a drama, and he thought the best way was to play the whole thing out whatever the ending."

"My judgment is that there seems to be some steady impairment of his own judgment concerning himself, particularly his relationship to life."

Dreaming Abnormal
Leopold's day dreaming, or phantasies, made a very important thing, said the witness, "not because we are not all subject to it, but because his early day dreaming was so abnormal."

scribing his experiences, Lieut. Wade said:

"It was the first time we had had trouble with the oil pump and our second forced landing on the 15,000 mile flight. The first was on the Japanese coast when we came down for water."

"On yesterday's flight when the trouble came, we signalled Lieut. Smith by waving that we were forced down; also that the engine was out of commission, requesting him to advise the patrol. We expected to remain in the water until the Richmond arrived. We saw a merchant vessel at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, but could not attract its attention. An hour later the trawler which rescued us, was sighted. We had to signal her with pistol and rifle before she noticed us."

"It was a tough break after the five months' flight, as when the four planes left America the army hoped all four would return. But it's all in the game. We did our best."

President Faces Busy Period Before Speech
By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Aug. 4.—President Coolidge, faces a busy ten days before he delivers his campaign keynote speech at the formal notification ceremony here at the Aug. 14, with some knotty government problems on his calendar. The reports of the tariff commission on the sugar tariff, in which opposite views are set forth and over which considerable controversy has waged for more than a year, are on his desk, and he expects also to make an early selection of an ambassador to Mexico to succeed Charles B. Warren, who retires today.

Meanwhile Mr. Coolidge plans to conclude his speech of acceptance early this week and go over it with Mr. Warren and with Chairman Butler of the national committee.

RADIO'S FUTURE.

Crepe-hangers are predicting that the radio craze is booked to fizzle out. They are wrong. Unquestionably, interest in radio is going through a decided slump. It is natural reaction. The novelty is wearing off. Radio is becoming commonplace. Only a few months ago it was as great a marvel as the arrival of a man from Mars.

Manufacturers of radio equipment think the slump in wireless enthusiasm is due to summer. Their theory is that people want to be outdoors now in the evenings as much as possible. In autumn, the manufacturers predict, radio will come stronger than ever.

An old hand-bill comes to light in the east, advertising one of the early telephone demonstrations at the city hall in Lawrence, Mass., May 28, 1877. The handbill reads:

"The miracle telephone! Wonderful discovery of the age! Prof. A. Graham Bell, assisted by Mr. Frederic A. Gower, will give an exhibition of his wonderful and miraculous discovery. The telephone, before the people of Lawrence, when Boston and Lawrence will be connected via the Western Union Telegraph, and vocal and instrumental music and conversation will be transmitted a distance of twenty-seven miles and received by that audience in city hall. Professor Bell will give an explanatory lecture with this marvelous exhibition."

The telephone, considered a marvel, swept popular fancy overnight. Then it had a slump. Many predicted that the telephone craze would die out quickly, just as similar predictions are being made now about radio.
But the telephone hasn't died out. Neither will radio. It is as much in its infancy as Bell's phone was in 1877.

AN ACADEMIC DISCUSSION.

There is much controversy between Great Britain and France over the powers to be exercised by the proposed American member of the reparations commission. The discussion is of slight interest to this government, because there will never be an American member of this commission who will in any sense speak for the United States. It may be that an American will be invited to become a member of the commission, but he will act only in his individual capacity, just as General Dawes and Mr. Young acted on the international committee that conceived the Dawes plan. There is no policy of our international relations more firmly fixed than that of non-entanglement in the problems of Europe. The United States can never accept the responsibility that would go with an official representative on the reparations commission. We will continue to look after our own affairs.

UNDERGROUND.

Strange and ancient people who live in holes in the ground are discovered in Africa.
Ashton, explorer who found them, calls them
Troglydites, meaning "cave dwellers."
The apartment house dweller in our cities has much in common with the African Troglydites. Yet either would pay admission to see the other in his native haunts. Next time you're at the zoo or circus, observe that the monkeys are more interested in the crowds than the crowds in the monkeys.

PEP.

To prove a man 56 is still young, Arthur
Thomas Wilson took a 7500-mile hike with a 10-pound pack on his back. He started from Detroit with only 78 cents. Human nature is pretty decent, he decides, for motorists gave him lifts at least half the way. This cuts his actual hike to about 3700 miles, but that's a big achievement for a man of 56.

Many a man under 30 couldn't do it.
Physical condition in later years depends a lot on the care we give our bodily machinery in youth—also on heredity. The super-strong and healthy are born that way.

DESIRE.

Alexander Miller of New York, young, wealthy, healthy, educated and accomplished, killed himself because he was tired of the world and believed the world tired of him.

It isn't difficult to explain the suicides of the old, poor, sick, illiterate and unfitted, but reading the news dispatches of Miller's act one instinctively asks why should youth with so much to live for take the fatal and irrevocable leap?

If we had the whole story of the tragic life of Alexander Miller, playwright, we might find that he had loved and lost or that he had courted fame in vain. It is manifest that he was sick in mind if not in body and there is no more unbearable ill than that of the mind.
The case of the youthful literary aspirant exemplifies the oft-expressed maxim that a world of possession will not compensate for one desired but unpossessed. To be sure, there is probably no living human being entirely content with his or her lot. Often possessions beget desires. Thoreau was one of those rare mortals who thrive on bare existence, who want little and ask for less.

One of the reasons why the world improves, commerce expands, industry grows and inventions multiply is that people never experience the condition of saturation with "human wishes." The more we get, the more we want and the bigger our estate the bigger our air castles.

The small car owner of today is the big car driver of tomorrow. The bungalow builder of today is the lord of a castle tomorrow.
The inexpensive vacation this summer will lead to an expensive vacation next year. The end of human desires is eternity—where Alexander Miller hoped to find it.

CHAINED.

Chicago father arrested for keeping his boy chained up all day at home. Pa says he's away working and chaining was the only way he could keep the lad home. "He says out until 2 o'clock in the morning sometimes."

The solution of such a problem is not chains, but more playgrounds and recreation centers for the young. High land values and congestion of population have taken from youth its rightful heritage, a place to play.
Even alleys, delight of boyhood, are becoming a vanishing institution. How can we expect youngsters to seek innocent enjoyment when they haven't any place for it?

OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 1—WEENY, THE CIRCUS ELEPHANT

"I wonder if the Fairy Queen will send us on another adventure," said Nancy to Nick, as they ran down to the meadow to play.

"Let's look beside the stone under the chestnut tree," said Nick.
And there, sure enough, were the magic green shoes, and beside them a letter. The letter said:

"Der Twins:
"You have been such good children that I thought you would like to go on a vacation. My good friend, Weeny, the elephant, is going to take a trip around the world, and if you like you may take the magic shoes and go with him."

"Weeny lives in the jungle and if you put on your magic shoes they will take you to him at once."

"I hope that you will have a nice time and that you will see many interesting things."

"Lovingly yours,
"The Fairy Queen."

"Hurrah!" cried Nick.
"Goody," cried Nancy.
And into the magic shoes they jumped in a hurry.

Puff, whizz, swish! Away they went through the air like two little comets, until they came to the jungle.

And there was Weeny packing his satchel.

"Hello!" he called. "I thought you would be here soon. The Fairy Queen told me to expect you. Did you bring any peanuts along?"

"We never thought of them," said
Nancy, regretfully.

"Well, never mind. It's too late now," said Weeny. "Besides, most likely we'll run into a peanut tree."

"Peanuts don't grow on trees," said Nick.

"No, I guess they grow in paper bags," said Weeny. "There! I'm all packed now. I'm not taking much.
Only a nightgown and a toothbrush and my specks. Hop on my back now and please hold my satchel. I don't think I forgot anything."

Now it is no small matter to hop up on an elephant, but if you have magic shoes you can hop to the moon, so up jumped the Twins and off they started, all three of them on their vacation.

"I think I'll visit my circus friends," said Weeny. "It's far cheaper to visit friends than to go to hotels."

"Oh, were you ever in a circus?"
asked Nick.

"Sure," said Weeny. "That's what elephants are for."

"Then why aren't you still?" asked Nancy.

"I don't like to be scrubbed with a broom like an old carpet," said Weeny, "so I ran off."

"If you go back to the circus to visit your friends, you'll have to stay," said Nick.

"Oh, my friends aren't in the circus any more," said Weeny as he trotted along. "There was a wreck on the railroad one night and they all got away and went home."

"How can you cross the sea?" asked Nick. "It's pretty wide."

"The Fairy Queen touched me with her wand and I learned to fly with my ears," said Weeny. "I am also a good swimmer. I can go anywhere."

Breathe Deep, Often

"A lot of you birds figure that if you take 10 deep breaths with your daily dozen each morning you've given your lungs all they've got coming to 'em," a physical director once reminded Mr. Mann of Anytown.

Taking a half dozen deep breaths
during an exercise and then forgetting all about it for the rest of the day is a relatively ridiculous plan.

Not only should deep breathing exercises be taken some time during the day, but whenever the out-of-doors is reached by shut-ins it should be the signal for a series of long breaths.

And for the office-bound here's a tip: go to the open window every once in a while and get a good lung full.

First, get the habit from a series of exercises; then keep at it during the day.

One physician has said that a hundred deep breaths a day would keep away tuberculosis.

Also it's good in nervous conditions.

But it's a mighty fine habit for everyone to get into.

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRES-COTT TO RUTH ELLINGTON

So you went to New York, dear
Ruth, to meet Walter?

Of course, you know by this time
I was called here by my father's serious illness. Poor old dad! He has to have a surgical operation, and we are preparing him for it today. We will take him to the hospital tomorrow. The doctors, however, say they think he will get well and be quite healthy if the operation is successful. You see, dear, there is always an if.

Of course, I am exceedingly nervous and worried about him. It is unfortunate that coming just at this time should be this trouble I am having in my own home.

Before I begin to talk about myself, I want to wish you all joy possible with this sweetheart of yours, who has been so faithful. I don't want to discourage you at all, but just at present I would not be a good person to consult if the consultant wanted an affirmative opinion on marriage. I wouldn't marry any man on earth, even if I thought he was as splendid as I know you think Walter Burke is at the present moment.

Ruth, that terrible catastrophe that we were afraid was looming up has come and my marriage has gone on the rocks. Only you have known, dear, just how I have nursed every joy and tried to prolong every happiness that has come to me in the last three years. Only you know how much I have forgiven and tried to forget. It has been of no avail.
Jack will never forgive me.

Three years married—the fatal three years. You know that psychologists say that if one gets through the first three years of married life, the chances of being able to bear the load are not so bad. I once heard Jane Adams talk about this. She said the first year of marriage the husband was very proud of his wife, and the wife kept her house very splendidly and paid a great deal of attention to him. Even in the sec-

SYNOPSIS

Sir Oliver Tressilian, renowned for his exploits on the Spanish Main, is betrothed to Rosamund Godolphin, but the marriage is opposed by both Rosamund's brother, Peter, and her guardian, Sir John Killigrew. By repeated insults Peter finally provokes Oliver to threaten murder, and when Oliver's young half-brother, Lionel, kills Peter in an unwitnessed quarrel suspicion falls on Oliver. Even Rosamund believes him guilty, and asks him to explain the trail of blood found leading from the body to his doorway. Desiring to protect Lionel, Oliver can do nothing but protest his innocence. But he goes to the justices and asks them to draw up a document attesting to the fact that he bears on his body no mark of recent wound; that therefore the trail of blood, obviously that of the wounded murderer, was not his. This document he takes away to hold in readiness until needed.

A few weeks later Lionel learns from Jasper Leigh, a pirate sea captain whose ship is lying in the harbor, that the queen has been petitioned to command the justices to bring Oliver to trial. Half-crazed with fear that should Oliver clear himself his own implication will follow, Lionel formulates a scheme to get his brother out of the way. He hires Leigh to abduct Oliver and sell him as a galley-slave to the Barbary rovers.

The clock over the stables chimed the hour of eight. Master Lionel shrank back in his chair at the sound. The thing would be doing even now. In his mind he saw it all—saw his brother come running in his eagerness to the gates of Godolphin Court, and then dark forms resolve themselves from the surrounding darkness and fall silently upon him.

Another half hour sat he there. The thing was done by now, and this assurance seemed to quiet him a little.

Then came Nicholas again to babble of some possible mischance having overtaken his master.

"What mischance should have overtaken him?" growled Lionel, as if in scorn of the idea.

"I pray none indeed," replied the servant. "But Sir Oliver lacks not for enemies nowadays, and 'tis scarce safe for him to be abroad after dark."

Master Lionel dismissed the notion contemptuously. For pretense's sake he announced that he would wait no longer, whereupon Nicholas brought in his supper and left him again to go and linger about the door, looking out into the night and listening for his master's return. He had paid a visit to the stables and knew that Sir Oliver had gone forth afoot.

Meanwhile Master Lionel must make pretense of eating, though actual eating must have choked him. He smeared his platter, broke food and avidly drank a bumper of claret. Then he, too, feigned a growing anxiety and went to join Nicholas. Thus they spent the weary night, watching for the return of one whom Master Lionel knew would return no more.

At dawn they roused the servants and sent them to scour the countryside and put the news of Sir Oliver's disappearance abroad. Lionel himself rode out to Arwe-nack to ask Sir John Killigrew bluntly if he knew aught of this matter.

Sir John showed a startled face, but swore readily enough that he had not so much as seen Sir Oliver for days. He was gentle with Lionel, whom he liked, as everybody liked him. The lad was so mild and kindly in his ways; so vastly different from his arrogant overbearing brother, that his virtue shone the more brightly by that contrast.

"I confess it is natural you should come to me," said Sir John. "But, my word on it, I have no knowledge of him. It is not my way to beset my enemies in the dark."

"Indeed, indeed, Sir John, I had not supposed it in my heart," replied the afflicted Lionel. "Forgive me that I should have come to ask a question so unworthy. Set it down to my distracted state. I have not been the same man these months, I think since that happening in Godolphin Park. The thing has preyed upon my mind. It is a fearful burden to know your own brother—though I thank God he is no more than my half-brother—guilty of so foul a deed."

"How?" cried Killigrew, amazed. "You say that? You believed it yourself?"

Master Lionel looked confused, a look which Sir John entirely misunderstood and interpreted entirely in the young man's favor. And it was thus and in that moment that was sown the generous seed of the friendship that was to spring up between these two men, its roots fertilized by Sir John's pity that one so gentle-natured, so honest, and so upright should be cursed with so villainous a brother.

"Trust me to help a sound tale along."

servant was the only one to hold this view. If a doubt had lingered anywhere of Sir Oliver's guilt that doubt was now dispelled by this flight of his before the approach of the expected orders from the Queen.

Later that day came Captain Leigh to Penarrow inquiring for Sir Oliver.

Nicholas brought word of his presence and his inquiry to Master Lionel, who bade him be admitted. The thick-set little seaman rolled in on his bowed legs, and leered at his employer when they were alone.

"He's snug and safe aboard," he announced. "The thing were done as clean as peeling an apple, and as quiet."

"Why did you ask for him?" quoth Master Lionel.

"Why?" Jasper leered again. "My business was with him. There was some talk between us of him going a voyage with me. I've heard the gossip over at Smithick. This will fit in with it." He laid that finger of his to his nose. "Trust me to help a sound tale along. 'Twere a clumsy business to come here asking for you, sir. Ye'll know now how to account for my visit."

Lionel paid him the price agreed and dismissed him upon receiving the assurance that the Swallow would put to sea upon the next tide.

When it became known that Sir Oliver had been in treaty with Master Leigh for a passage overseas, and that it was but on that account that Master Leigh had tarried in that haven, even Nicholas began to doubt.

Hot Weather Hints for Animal Treatment

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Hot weather hints for the treatment of animals are given in the forthcoming issue of the National Humane Review, which says:

Much has been heard about the disappearance of the horse from the streets of our big cities but the fact remains that Dobbin is still far from extinct. Consequently, the day has not yet come when drinking troughs can be removed and the space used for parking automobiles, unless the horses are to suffer.

Other animals should not be forgotten. The collie dog will appreciate a visit to the hair clipper's when the long hair can be safely cut off. Meat should be fed sparingly to dogs and a diet of vegetables substituted as much as possible. Remember that the dogs like to romp and run. If you would make your dog happy take him into the country on hikes.

This is the season when many cats are abandoned while their owners are enjoying themselves at the ocean beach or mountain resort. There is a growing practice of turning over cats to the society for humane destruction when the owners are unable to care for them.

Tabby is an independent individual and there are persons who think that a cat can pick up a living by catching mice and rats. Unfortunately, when cats are forced to forage for themselves they frequently catch birds.

The American Humane Association has again completed a successful humane contest in which upwards of one hundred thousand youngsters of the high and grammar schools have participated.

Quarterly News Bulletin of the ILLINOIS NORTHERN UTILITIES COMPANY

DIXON, ILL.
AUGUST 1.

QUARTERLY NEWS BULLETIN OF THE

POWER FACILITIES INCREASED

Your company has already started work on a new development at Dixon, Ill., that will be, when completed, the largest low-head hydro-electric plant in the world.

This new plant will have a generating capacity of more than 10,000,000 kilowatt hours of electrical energy per year. The cost of it will be about $600,000.

The plans for immediate execution provide for five 750-kilowatt hydro-electric turbine generators, with combined capacity of 3,750 kilowatts—about 5,000 horsepower. Three of the five are to be installed and ready for service by January 1, 1925.

Almost a score of bids were received on the construction and electrical installation work from some of the largest marine and electrical contractors in the country. Wm. Crump & Sons, marine engineers and builders, of Philadelphia, a firm which is known world wide in this particular line of work, has been awarded the contract for the turbines.

The new plant will be housed in a modern fireproof building 240 feet in length, by 40 feet in width and 40 feet high. The building will be of a pleasing and symmetrical design and at night the entire plant will be illuminated with a system of flood lights, enhancing the attractiveness of the appearance.

The old hydro-electric plant at this point on the Rock river will be completely dismantled. About 25,000 cubic yards of old walls and concrete work will have to be removed. Incidentally, this will remove an unsightly Dixon landmark—foundations which once supported an old mill.

ILLINOIS NORTHERN UTILITIES COMPANY

A portion of the present dam will be retained and used in connection with raising and lowering the boats that pass up and down the Rock river. Altogether, the improvement will be modern in every respect, the building and all construction to be of the most approved type.

Another company improvement of almost equal significance—in some respects of greater significance—has been completed. The last link in the Freeport-Lena 33,000-volt transmission line is finished and is now in service.

This has closed the gap between Illinois and Wisconsin high tension transmission systems. There is now one continuous copper network, transmitting and distributing electrical energy, from Oakbrook, Wis., to St. Louis, Mo., and from Keokuk, Ia., to Logansport, Ind., and your company is an important integral part of it.

Business continues to increase right along.

The electrical output of the company during the last quarter was 10,552,061 kilowatt hours, an increase of 17.2 per cent over the output for the same period last year.

The gas output for the quarter was 78,592,500 cubic feet, a gain of more than 15 per cent over the corresponding period of last year.

There is being sent to you, with this letter and your dividend check, a copy of an address by Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, on "Super Power—Its General Aspects." Mr. Hoover's address

Playing Qualifying Rounds in Women's Golf Tourney

Chicago, Aug. 4.—The women's national champion, Edith Cummings, the defending titleholder, Miriam Burns of Kansas City, six former western champions and some 150 other women golfers, including many state, city and regional titleholders today played the qualifying rounds of the Women's Western Golf championship at Onwentsia Club.

While Miss Burns automatically qualified because of the title she won at Exmoor Club last year by defeating Louise Forney of Youngstown, Ohio in the finals, she elected to play today for the practice and a chance to win low medal honors.

Miss Cummings, while she has won honors abroad in addition to the national crown, has never won the western prize honors. She is a favorite, however as the play is over her home course.

Thirty-two players will qualify for the championship flight. Match play will be at 18 holes until the finals on Saturday, when 36 holes will be played for the title.

LONDON—Arne Borg, Swedish Olympic swimmer, broke the world's record in the 1,000 yard swim, making the distance in 12:20 4/5.

Genoa Child Lost Leg in Binder: Dad Driving

Genoa—Run over by a binder that was being operated by his father, Edwin Keister's left leg was cut off between the ankle and the knee Friday afternoon. Sycamore hospital authorities believe that the three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keister will recover.

Unknown to the father, the infant had gone into the oat field to play. The high grain concealed the child, so that the father did not see the child as he drove the binder through the field. The Keister infant is also suffering from bruises and lacerations.

FREEPORT BOY WITH PIRATES WINS EIGHTH

Yde, Known Here, Making Good with a Vengeance.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
If the American League race becomes much closer the relative standing of the three leaders will have to be measured with a fourth dimension yard stick. Detroit today is back in first place, one point ahead of the Yankees, who, in turn, have a half game advantage over Washington.

Still nursing bruises sustained in St. Louis, the Huguenots attempted to beat the Tiger in his den, with dire results. Cobb and his loyal followers threw 42,000 fans into a frenzy of delight by conquering the intruders, 6-2.

The feature was Hellman's seventh home run of the season. St. Louis' single and McManus' circuit drive were the deciding factors in St. Louis' 3-1 victory over Washington. Judge saved the Senators from a shutout with a four baser in the eighth.

Inability to hit when essential caused the downfall of Chicago at the hands of the Athletics, 9-3.

The combined efforts of Smith and Shaute limited Boston's hit total to 5, as Cleveland bagged a 3-2 victory. Inasmuch as Arthur Nehf was in form, there was nothing for the Cubs to do but accept a 10-2 beating from the Giants as gracefully as possible.

The defeat cost Chicago second place, which Pittsburgh usurped through a win in Brooklyn.

In the only other National League engagement, the Pirates sent the Robins home to a tasteless supper on the short end of a 5-2 score. Yde registered his eight straight victory.

PRINCE OF WALES' CHEF GETS LETTERS LIKE MOVIE IDOL

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS
NEA Service Writer

New York—The movie hero isn't the only man that gets fan letters these days—not by any means.

Monsieur de Gerog receives on the average of 200 a day, with photographs, present and promises thrown in, and he's never been an actor in his life.

But he has been a caterer to the royal English family for many years. He accompanies the well-known Prince of Wales on all of his trips, and knows that young gentlemen's likes and dislikes pretty well by this time.

Since he arrived in this country in advance of the prince, who is not due until August, he is besieged with requests from women from all over this country begging him to arrange the introduction—and they will do the rest.

"Alas," he confided to me, "they do not know how hard this is. Unless there is a public reception—and the prince hates these—there will be very little chance. And all requests must be taken up with the private secretary of the prince and with Vice Admiral Sir Lionel Halsey—and there is much red tape."

Then remembering the one sure route to a man's affections, he passed on this information about what his royal highness likes to eat.

"For luncheon, English food, roast beef, Yorkshire pudding, and substantial foods; for dinner, French cooking. He is very fond of game and cares very little for mixed drinks or champagne. His favorite drink is Scotch and soda."

The recipes for the prince's favorite meat dish and salad he also divulged, and here they are:

Breast of Chicken, Calcutta Style.
For this you need the breasts from three-and one-half or four-pound chickens, seasoned with salt inside and out. First take some white onions, very finely chopped, and fry in butter until they are a light brown in color. Peel one raw apple and chop very fine and let it simmer with the onions for another 10 minutes. Then spread over this mixture Indian curry powder and wet the whole with chicken broth until it forms a light green colored sauce.

Boil this slowly for about an hour and a half and then strain through a sieve. Then pour over the chicken breasts in a casserole and cook from 35 to 40 minutes. Just before you serve it you mix a little grated fresh coconut and a little double cream with the sauce to thicken it.

You serve this with rice which is prepared this way: Put a piece of butter in a pan with a few chopped white onions that have been allowed to heat but not brown. Then put in a cup of rice and mix the rice with the onions and butter and add two cups of chicken broth seasoned with salt and white pepper. Cover and place in the oven 18 minutes. Then remove at once from the dish in which it was cooked.

Use the rice as a garnish around the chicken and sauce. Serve with Indian chutney.

By Assembly Reporter
The School for Religious Workers has ended and today the Inter-denominational School of Missions opens with a large faculty well qualified to make the school year as successful as the first.

The second week of entertainment at the Assembly will be started by the Montague Light Opera Singers. The production they are putting on this evening is "Gretchen of Holland" which promises to be entertaining from beginning to end. The light opera is something which always has enjoyed the highest favor of the theatre going public and this production will not fall short of the highest expectations.

Tomorrow the John Howard Concert party composed of five musicians, three women and two men will appear in a prelude at two P. M. and in the evening at eight will present their complete program. This company was not organized for a season, but has been a permanent organization since 1911. The combination includes first violin, obligate violin, cello, flute and piano. With each member of the company a finished artist there is nothing to be expected but the very finest program.

Saturday at the Assembly was devoted to the thirty-first annual convention of the Luther League of Illinois. The evening program was one of especial interest to the children. It was named The Children's Circus. The feature of greatest interest was the manner in which the trained Catechists performed. To watch them put out a fire in a doll house called forth the greatest attitude of wonder from the audience. The program was divided into three parts, the first being an act of magic with a Punch and Judy show, the second was the performance of the birds and the third was an act of clever juggling which set the audience on edge many times.

Kable Band Pleased
The concert of Sunday afternoon was one of especial note. The Kable Brothers' Band of Mt. Morris proved itself to be an organization capable of producing something of great worth. In the selection of instruments it was well balanced which manifested itself in the quality and the interpretation of the music on its program. The director, L. M. DeArvi deserves credit for the excellent way in which he conducted the organization.

The selection of numbers and the style in which they were rendered was truly flattering to the audience, regarding their appreciation of music especially in this modern era when music is so popularized. The present tendency is to cater to a mediocre appreciation of music, but in this program we heard the artistic presentation of music in its pure and idealistic sense and not in the modern sense in which one blushing defines

Meeting in Bradford Town
The moving picture meeting under the auspices of the Lee Co. Farm Bureau, at the Newman School in Bradford township, Friday evening, proved most popular. The school house would not accommodate the crowd and arrangements were made to show the picture outside. The second set of the Lincoln series was shown together with a comic. It was voted to hold another meeting Friday evening, August 8, at which another series of the Lincoln stories will be shown, with one or two other comic films.

The crowd attending the meeting last week included many from adjoining townships, from nearby towns as far as Rochelle.

ISLAND SPRINGS UP
Kharkoff—Warning beacons have been erected on a new island which sprang up recently in the sea of Azov, an arm of the Black Sea, as a result of a maritime convulsion. A gigantic geyser of earth, rocks and smoke spouted for more than 10 minutes. At the end of that time a new island had appeared as if by magic out of the water.

A fair sized crowd turned out to her this most excellent program and it was especially interesting to watch them turn out of the auditorium during the intermission when the offering was being taken up.

At the evening service, Miss Lucy Case, formerly a missionary to Japan, was the speaker. Being from Japan, her subject naturally included Japan, describing conditions and customs of that country, the England of the Orient. The music was furnished by St. Paul's Lutheran Choir and again a good crowd was present.

Tomorrow is the annual stockholders' meeting and is scheduled for 10 a. m.

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

Three Types Of Ties

Most men pay close and circumstantial heed to the color and pattern of their neckwear, but pay very little to the shape of it. Yet, there is a wide variety of forms each of which best befits a certain cast of features and this matter should be made the subject of far more attention. The two most favored shapes in neckwear are the so-called four-in-hand (originally termed the sailor knot) and the bow-knot tie of which the batwing and butterfly bows are variants.

As a rule, to which there are occasional and sensible exceptions, the four-in-hand scarf is most becoming to the round, full face, conducing to give it an appearance of more depth. Contrariwise, the bow-knot tie looks best under the long, oval face, tending to give it an aspect of greater width. If these two simple and obvious principles of proportion are kept in mind, one cannot go amiss.

Now, if you have the cast of features to which the bow-knot tie is well suited, you may select one of three types sketched alongside. The first is the elongated tie with a snug center and pointed ends. The second is the round-end tie with a plump knot. The third is the batwing tie, in its extreme form, the butterfly bow having a right-and-left center and outspread fan-shaped tips.

When Robert Burns wrote, "Nae man can tether time and tide", he might well have added, or comfort, either. It rides Juggernaut-like over fashions and traditions. Notwithstanding that most of us admit that the starched collar is smarter and trimmer than the soft collar, the preference for the latter simply declines to decline. It has become one-and-indivisible with Summer dress.

The proper line of division would be to set aside the soft collar for sport, country and knockabout wear and to reserve the starched collar for town, formal or semi-formal wear. In that way the undoubted usefulness of each type would be preserved without encroaching upon the other.

However, you cannot argue with one grilled by the heat, and so the soft collars and bow-knot ties, shown here, are the types that are generally worn in Summer by The Well-Dressed Man.

SUPERSTITION OF "DOG DAYS" IS RIDICULED

Stagnant Pools and Mad Dogs Scared Scoffed At.

Springfield, Ill.—"Dog Days," popularly believed to be the days of the year in which dogs are excessively dangerous, and in which all bathing pools are contaminated, have begun. The season for dog days, so named because Sirius, the Dog Star, rises with the sun, began last week and continues until September 1.

Superstition has it that the combination of the sun and the Dog Star brings excessive heat, which causes poisoned ponds and mad dogs. The days of summer which are hottest fall within this part of the season.

However, medical authorities are inclined to scoff at the "Dog Day" superstition. Mad dogs are no more dangerous during this period than at any other time, they announce. There is, however, a greater possibility of dogs becoming rabid during the hotter weather.

Also, in response to the poisoned pool belief, the medical state that there is no more likelihood of contracting infection in clear water during this period than at any other.

The excess dryness which brings stagnation, causes pools to be unhealthful for bathing, unless there is an inlet and outlet. Deeper ponds and pools located in shaded

Breathe Regularly

Having become interested in breathing exercises, Mr. Mann began to inquire more deeply into the effect obtained from deep, rhythmic breathing. And, among other things, he found this out:

When an ordinary breath is taken something like 10 per cent of the lung content is changed with each breath. When a deep breath is taken the entire lung is forced into action and an immediate stimulant is given the liver and abdominal circulation of the blood.

This, in turn, has the helpful result of setting into action any stagnant blood in those two regions, causing it to be oxygenated. Blood pressure is favorably influenced and persons of high emotional tendencies can be benefited by a systematic course in deep and rhythmic breathing.

Breathing should be deep and slow, carried on rhythmically. Some oriental races have worked out an interesting method to insure evenness of breath.

They press a finger to the side of the nose, closing one nostril and breathing through the other; then reversing to the other nostril.

While doing this it may be noted that the sound of breathing becomes audible and attention to this sound of air makes it possible to note whether the breathing is irregular.

spots, are not apt to become stagnant at this time of the year. For the city pools, state health authorities advise a change of water several times a week in order to observe the ordinary rules of health. For the individual, moderate living, with emphasis on moderate eating, plenty of water, plenty of sleep and no over-exertion will act as sure preventatives, and will dispel the Dog Day superstition, they say.

Motorists Want to Know

Motorists frequently put this question to attendants at service stations of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana):

"Is it not a fact that gasoline prices vary more throughout the United States than do the prices of any other product?"

The answer is quoted from the Oil and Gas Journal issue of June 12, 1924:

"Gasoline prices are more uniform than most of the widely utilized commodities. Thirty-five states have gasoline taxes varying in amounts from 1 to 4 cents. This fact would necessitate a difference in retail prices of as great as 4 cents in some states. Crude oil is found in a comparatively small area of the United States and this fact also necessitates variances in the retail prices due largely to the difference in transportation costs from the crude producing fields and the refineries to the gasoline consuming areas. The price differences, however, are not as great as in many other products. For instance, a recent monthly survey made by the United States Bureau of Labor covering twenty-nine cities scattered throughout the United States showed the following high and low range in prices in several commodities: Sirloin steak, 26 to 61.5 cents per lb.; sugar, 9.6 to 12.7 cents per lb.; bituminous coal, $4.50 to $17.40 per ton; flour, 3.3 to 5.5 cents per lb.; and oranges, 27.9 to 49.5 cents per dozen. The low in gasoline prices for the same cities was 12.8 cents and the high 20 cents. The survey was made last December when gasoline prices were lower than they are at the present although the same price range is in effect."

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) serves the automobilizing public by maintaining at convenient intervals throughout the Middle West, an efficient chain of service stations, which sell gasoline and oils of uniform high quality, at prices as nearly uniform as freight rates and tax laws permit.

The price of gasoline sold by this Company is subject only to the uncertainties of economic laws, which no commodities may avoid.

This highly trained organization of 27,000 men and women is straining every nerve and fibre that you may have gasoline when and where you want it—of highest quality and at a price which is fair, equitable and low at all times.

Ottawa, Ill., Aug. 2—Edward Baker, head of Baker Brothers, wholesale grocers of Streator, Ill., and wealthy, was taken into custody last night on a petition filed by Miss Mary Elias, a hotel employee here, who charged that he has beaten her, cut off her hair and threatened to shoot her. Her petition sought to have Baker examined as to his sanity.

The young woman appeared at the court house with her head shorn of her tresses and her face discolored. Baker, at the point of a revolver, had kept her helpless while he beat her and then clipped her hair, she alleged. Finally, she charged, he threatened to kill her. Call! Don't Broadcast!

The telephone, gas, electric light and power and electric transportation industries represent public utilities which are used by everyone and form such an important part of our lives that good service is vital. The companies which furnish these necessities are dependent upon mechanical apparatus and personnel to render service. Nothing human or mechanical is perfect; both are liable to failure

Public service companies desire and endeavor to give good service; they know mistakes and failures will occur, and they maintain departments to receive complaints and correct unsatisfactory conditions. They want to know.

The quickest way to get an adjustment of any difficulty with utility service is to call it to the attention of the company. It is money in the company's treasury to give good service and regardless to whom a patron complains, eventually it must be the company that rectifies the trouble.
